

Subject: Fwd: The Origins of Indianapolis Black History // The Politics of Hummus // Pacers Find Their Groove Again // Monster Truck Mindfulness
From: Rob Burgess <rburgess@nuvo.net>
To: Rob Burgess <robertandertonburgess@gmail.com>
Date Sent: Wed, 17 Apr 2019 14:29:05 -0400
Date Received:

----- Forwarded message -----

From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>

Date: Wed, Feb 13, 2019 at 12:10 PM

Subject: The Origins of Indianapolis Black History // The Politics of Hummus // Pacers Find Their Groove Again // Monster Truck Mindfulness

To: <rburgess@nuvo.net>

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 13

Flowers SPEAK
LOUDER THAN
Words

317-579-7900 | MCNAMARAFLORIST.COM

This Week in News

Updated 13 min ago

Happy Wednesday, everyone! It's Rob Burgess, News Editor, back with you once again. I hope your week is going well.

Last Thursday, I had the opportunity to attend the Community Listening & Engagement Fund conference at Temple University in Philadelphia. It was a really great experience to come together and share ideas with journalists from all over the country. These other news organizations are also using tools we are employing in our reporting including Harken and GroundSource. If you've been paying attention to the changes in our reporting, these tools are key to what we're trying to accomplish.

For those of you who have voted or submitted questions through our City Committee page, you're already using Harken. We also had a chance to employ it during the creation of our Voters Guide so we could solicit questions having to do with the 2018 Midterm Elections. We then answered your questions about the voting process itself.

In the future, we'll be adding an optional field in our Harken to ask for your phone number, as well. It won't be required to submit your question, it will be strictly optional. This will be important as we move forward using the GroundSource service, which is text message-based. I will update more on this in the future.

We've received so many great responses since we launched this. We're finished with the first voting round, and now we're going to start tackling the questions we've received along with help from you, our readers. Up first is the winning question about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going?

I'll be getting started on a story focused on answering these questions this week. If you'd like help collaborate on this story, if you live in an affected area or have expertise that could help the reporting process, reach out to me at rburgess@nuvo.net, and help tell the story. This is a collaborative process, and we want your input.

We'll also start another round of voting this week with more reader-submitted story ideas and ways for you to weigh in on our coverage and be a part of the stories we are telling.

I'll have more on this in a future newsletter, but we've reached an important milestone in our transition. Stay tuned as we continue in this process.

- Rob

The Story of Chaney Lively

Indianapolis Black History can be traced to 1821 and one woman. Her name was Chaney Lively—a highly respected free woman of color who made the city her home for more than 35 years. Read more

The Politics of Hummus

Interfaith allies in Indianapolis say they are working to create non-Zionist Jewish experiences available to disaffected Jews and others, as well as a community more inclusive of diverse points of view and more politically aware.

Read more

Resilient Pacers Find Their Groove Again

With the recent edition of Wesley Matthews, the Pacers look to continuing a recent string of successes, winning games as a collective unit as they march towards the finish line. Read more

Burgess: Monster Truck Mindfulness

We had so much fun at Monster Jam, and a key part of that is because our attention was so focused on what was actually happening at that moment. How can I approach every moment as if it was as intrinsically exciting as a monster truck rally? Read more

Contest: Coheed & Cambria

Enter to win tickets to Coheed & Cambria at Old National Centre on February 24th.

Contest: Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness

Enter to win tickets to Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness at Old National Centre on February 28th!

NUVO Newsletters
3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200
Indianapolis, IN 46208
317-254-2400

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ rburgess@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net

--

Rob Burgess
News Editor, NUVO
NUVO.net
Phone: 317-808-4614
Twitter: @robaburg

Subject: Fwd: The Origins of Indianapolis Black History // The Politics of Hummus // Pacers Find Their Groove Again // Monster Truck Mindfulness
From: Rob Burgess <rburgess@nuvo.net>
To: Joe Amditis <jamditis@gmail.com>
Date Sent: Wed, 6 Mar 2019 14:34:53 -0500
Date Received:

----- Forwarded message -----

From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>
Date: Wed, Feb 13, 2019 at 12:10 PM
Subject: The Origins of Indianapolis Black History // The Politics of Hummus // Pacers Find Their Groove Again // Monster Truck Mindfulness
To: <rburgess@nuvo.net>

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 13

Flowers SPEAK
LOUDER THAN
Words

This Week in News

Updated 13 min ago

Happy Wednesday, everyone! It's Rob Burgess, News Editor, back with you once again. I hope your week is going well.

Last Thursday, I had the opportunity to attend the Community Listening & Engagement Fund conference at Temple University in Philadelphia. It was a really great experience to come together and share ideas with journalists from all over the country. These other news organizations are also using tools we are employing in our reporting including Harken and GroundSource. If you've been paying attention to the changes in our reporting, these tools are key to what we're trying to accomplish.

For those of you who have voted or submitted questions through our City Committee page, you're already using Harken. We also had a chance to employ it during the creation of our Voters Guide so we could solicit questions having to do with the 2018 Midterm Elections. We then answered your questions about the voting process itself.

In the future, we'll be adding an optional field in our Harken to ask for your phone number, as well. It won't be required to submit your question, it will be strictly optional. This will be important as we move forward using the GroundSource service, which is text message-based. I will update more on this in the future.

We've received so many great responses since we launched this. We're finished with the first voting round, and now we're going to start tackling the questions we've received along with help from you, our readers. Up first is the winning question about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going?

I'll be getting started on a story focused on answering these questions this week. If you'd like help collaborate on this story, if you live in an affected area or have expertise that could help the reporting process, reach out to me at rburgess@nuvo.net, and help tell the story. This is a collaborative process, and we want your input.

We'll also start another round of voting this week with more reader-submitted story ideas and ways for you to weigh in on our coverage and be a part of the stories we are telling.

I'll have more on this in a future newsletter, but we've reached an important milestone in our transition. Stay tuned as we continue in this process.

- Rob

The Story of Chaney Lively

Indianapolis Black History can be traced to 1821 and one woman. Her name was Chaney Lively—a highly respected free woman of color who made the city her home for more than 35 years. Read more

The Politics of Hummus

Interfaith allies in Indianapolis say they are working to create non-Zionist Jewish experiences available to disaffected Jews and others, as well as a community more inclusive of diverse points of view and more politically aware.

Read more

Resilient Pacers Find Their Groove Again

With the recent edition of Wesley Matthews, the Pacers look to continuing a recent string of successes, winning games as a collective unit as they march towards the finish line. Read more

Burgess: Monster Truck Mindfulness

We had so much fun at Monster Jam, and a key part of that is because our attention was so focused on what was actually happening at that moment. How can I approach every moment as if it was as intrinsically exciting as a monster truck rally? Read more

Contest: Coheed & Cambria

Enter to win tickets to Coheed & Cambria at Old National Centre on February 24th.

Contest: Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness

Enter to win tickets to Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness at Old National Centre on February 28th!

NUVO Newsletters
3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200
Indianapolis, IN 46208
317-254-2400

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ rburgess@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net

--

Rob Burgess
News Editor, NUVO
NUVO.net
Phone: 317-808-4614
Twitter: @robaburg

Subject: The Origins of Indianapolis Black History // The Politics of Hummus // Pacers Find Their Groove Again // Monster Truck Mindfulness
From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>
To: editors@nuvo.net
Date Sent: Wed, 13 Feb 2019 12:10:23 -0500 (EST)
Date Received: Wed, 13 Feb 2019 09:10:29 -0800 (PST)

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 13

Flowers SPEAK
LOUDER THAN
Words

This Week in News

Updated 13 min ago

Happy Wednesday, everyone! It's Rob Burgess, News Editor, back with you once again. I hope your week is going well.

Last Thursday, I had the opportunity to attend the Community Listening & Engagement Fund conference at Temple University in Philadelphia. It was a really great experience to come together and share ideas with journalists from all over the country. These other news organizations are also using tools we are employing in our reporting including Harken and GroundSource. If you've been paying attention to the changes in our reporting, these tools are key to what we're trying to accomplish.

For those of you who have voted or submitted questions through our City Committee page, you're already using Harken. We also had a chance to employ it during the creation of our Voters Guide so we could solicit questions having to do with the 2018 Midterm Elections. We then answered your questions about the voting process itself.

In the future, we'll be adding an optional field in our Harken to ask for your phone number, as well. It won't be required to submit your question, it will be strictly optional. This will be important as we move forward using the GroundSource service, which is text message-based. I will update more on this in the future.

We've received so many great responses since we launched this. We're finished with the first voting round, and now we're going to start tackling the questions we've received along with help from you, our readers. Up first is the winning question about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going?

I'll be getting started on a story focused on answering these questions this week. If you'd like help collaborate on this story, if you live in an affected area or have expertise that could help the reporting process, reach out to me at rburgess@nuvo.net, and help tell the story. This is a collaborative process, and we want your input.

We'll also start another round of voting this week with more reader-submitted story ideas and ways for you to weigh in on our coverage and be a part of the stories we are telling.

I'll have more on this in a future newsletter, but we've reached an important milestone in our transition. Stay tuned as we continue in this process.

- Rob

The Story of Chaney Lively

Indianapolis Black History can be traced to 1821 and one woman. Her name was Chaney Lively—a highly respected free woman of color who made the city her home for more than 35 years. Read more

The Politics of Hummus

Interfaith allies in Indianapolis say they are working to create non-Zionist Jewish experiences available to disaffected Jews and others, as well as a community more inclusive of diverse points of view and more politically aware.

Read more

Resilient Pacers Find Their Groove Again

With the recent edition of Wesley Matthews, the Pacers look to continuing a recent string of successes, winning games as a collective unit as they march towards the finish line. Read more

Burgess: Monster Truck Mindfulness

We had so much fun at Monster Jam, and a key part of that is because our attention was so focused on what was actually happening at that moment. How can I approach every moment as if it was as intrinsically exciting as a monster truck rally? Read more

Contest: Coheed & Cambria

Enter to win tickets to Coheed & Cambria at Old National Centre on February 24th.

Contest: Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness

Enter to win tickets to Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness at Old National Centre on February 28th!

NUVO Newsletters
3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200
Indianapolis, IN 46208

317-254-2400

Copyright © 2019 NUVO Inc. All Rights Reserved

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ editors@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net

Subject: The Origins of Indianapolis Black History // The Politics of Hummus // Pacers Find Their Groove Again // Monster Truck Mindfulness
From: NUVO <newsletter@nuvo.net>
To: rburgess@nuvo.net
Date Sent: Wed, 13 Feb 2019 12:10:23 -0500 (EST)
Date Received: Wed, 13 Feb 2019 09:10:24 -0800 (PST)

/Slash: Wednesday, Feb. 13

Flowers SPEAK
LOUDER THAN
Words

This Week in News

Updated 13 min ago

Happy Wednesday, everyone! It's Rob Burgess, News Editor, back with you once again. I hope your week is going well.

Last Thursday, I had the opportunity to attend the Community Listening & Engagement Fund conference at Temple University in Philadelphia. It was a really great experience to come together and share ideas with journalists from all over the country. These other news organizations are also using tools we are employing in our reporting including Harken and GroundSource. If you've been paying attention to the changes in our reporting, these tools are key to what we're trying to accomplish.

For those of you who have voted or submitted questions through our City Committee page, you're already using Harken. We also had a chance to employ it during the creation of our Voters Guide so we could solicit questions having to do with the 2018 Midterm Elections. We then answered your questions about the voting process itself.

In the future, we'll be adding an optional field in our Harken to ask for your phone number, as well. It won't be required to submit your question, it will be strictly optional. This will be important as we move forward using the GroundSource service, which is text message-based. I will update more on this in the future.

We've received so many great responses since we launched this. We're finished with the first voting round, and now we're going to start tackling the questions we've received along with help from you, our readers. Up first is the winning question about Indianapolis migration trends within I-465. Is the downtown housing boom sustainable? How many racial and economic minorities are being forced out? Where are they going?

I'll be getting started on a story focused on answering these questions this week. If you'd like help collaborate on this story, if you live in an affected area or have expertise that could help the reporting process, reach out to me at rburgess@nuvo.net, and help tell the story. This is a collaborative process, and we want your input.

We'll also start another round of voting this week with more reader-submitted story ideas and ways for you to weigh in on our coverage and be a part of the stories we are telling.

I'll have more on this in a future newsletter, but we've reached an important milestone in our transition. Stay tuned as we continue in this process.

- Rob

The Story of Chaney Lively

Indianapolis Black History can be traced to 1821 and one woman. Her name was Chaney Lively—a highly respected free woman of color who made the city her home for more than 35 years. Read more

The Politics of Hummus

Interfaith allies in Indianapolis say they are working to create non-Zionist Jewish experiences available to disaffected Jews and others, as well as a community more inclusive of diverse points of view and more politically aware.

Read more

Resilient Pacers Find Their Groove Again

With the recent edition of Wesley Matthews, the Pacers look to continuing a recent string of successes, winning games as a collective unit as they march towards the finish line. Read more

Burgess: Monster Truck Mindfulness

We had so much fun at Monster Jam, and a key part of that is because our attention was so focused on what was actually happening at that moment. How can I approach every moment as if it was as intrinsically exciting as a monster truck rally? Read more

Contest: Coheed & Cambria

Enter to win tickets to Coheed & Cambria at Old National Centre on February 24th.

Contest: Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness

Enter to win tickets to Andrew McMahon in the Wilderness at Old National Centre on February 28th!

NUVO Newsletters
3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200
Indianapolis, IN 46208

317-254-2400

Copyright © 2019 NUVO Inc. All Rights Reserved

NUVO, 3951 N. Meridian St., Suite 200, Indianapolis, IN 46208

SafeUnsubscribe™ rburgess@nuvo.net

Update Profile | About our service provider

Sent by newsletter@nuvo.net